"GLORIA AND PEACE"

Was the Cry of the Commonwealers

As They Moved Upon Washington.

All the Men Carried Banners Inscribed:

"Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men, But Death to Interest on Bonds."

Washington, May 1.—The commonweal army was astir early today upon Brightwood height, with preparations for the great procession to the capitol. There was an early breakfast of eggs, coffee and bread; tents were struck and packed into wagons and the whole army was aligned before 10 o'clock. All the men carried staves on which fluttered white flags with the motto, "Peace on earth, good will toward men, but death to interest on bonds." There was much marching and counter marching on the grounds, prancing of stallions, and hauling of the commissary wagons into line. The men had passed a cold night, most of them sleeping on the ground.

Before the start Carl Browne formed the men into a hollow square and put them through a most remarkable drill. The staves were handled like guns, and when Browne shouted "Gloria and Peace," they cheered three times shrilly and waved their sticks in the air. These evolutions were performed by the main body of the army.

The Philadelphia commune, sixty men strong, with a long rope attached to their commissary wagon, stood at one side waiting to fall in. Oklahoma Sam galloped up and down the line on his stallion. The bass drum boomed dismally and the bag pipes emitted a shrill scream.

After marching twice around the grounds the men were drawn up in line and more cheers and drilling followed. Some of the military evolutions which Browne called on his men to perform must have been conceived in a nightmare. Brown harrangued the men in his customary street fakir strain, telling them they had received permission to march to the capitol grounds, where they must disband and enter as individual citizens.

"Whether or not we will be permitted to speak I cannot say," he added, "but you must be careful to preserve the peace. Then we will reform and march to our new camp near by, which has been provided. This demonstration will be more powerful than force, than guns, or than bombs," and the ragged army at this cheered wildly. Then Browne went on.

"People said that we would not march up Pennsylvania avenue when we reached here. Yet the police department yesterday informed Brother Coxey that we could march. We are here on time and will go to the grounds on time. All are certainly on deck. Yesterday it looked as if we would not have many, but now we will go in with spirits as bright as the May day on which we march. Mr. Crisp refused yesterday to let us speak on the capitol steps. We did not see the vice president. That is the latest I can tell you. We will go into the capitol grounds as individuals. They cannot prevent us from doing that."

Meanwhile down in the city there was nothing to indicate that the citizens were eager to view the queerest parade that had ever tramped the asphalt of Pennsylvania avenue. It takes brass buttons and bands, and many of them, to stir a Washington crowd, and Coxey's dissonant pipers and drummers could not cause even the vagrant negro population to get down town before hand.

At 10:15 o'clock the army was ready, and out of the Brightwood driving park it started for town. As the caravan wound its way through the mile stretch of woods to the city it was the most fantastic array ever conceived in a dream.

Nine mounted policemen rode ahead, clearing the way. Then came Carl Browne in his buckskin suit, mounted on his big gray Percheron stallion, and waving a small flag. Next was a creamy white prancing circus steed bearing the feature of the whole parade, Miss Mamie Coxey, in the role of the Goddess of Peace. She was a slender, really handsome girl, of seventeen years, with long golden hair drifting down her back. She wore a pure white riding habit, which streamed after her as the tall horse on which she had been perched pranced to the music of the band. Her head was covered by a little rimless blue cap, and she had shaded her face with a tiny parasol. Altogether she was a picture of such unusual beauty that a spontaneous cheer greeted the unexpected appearance all along the line.

The goddess of peace was followed by Oklahoma Sam, the cow boy, on another big stallion. Then came Roy Kirk and three other marshals. Thatcher, the bugler, rode next, emitting frequent blasts from his cornet and followed by a big flapping American flag, carried by a stalwart wealer.

Next the commonweal army band of six pieces, mostly bass drum and symbals, pounding determinedly in an attempt at "Marching Through Georgia."

The banner with a portrait of Carl Browne as Christ with the legend: "He is risen, but death to interest on bonds," was borne after a light buggy, decorated with flags, drawn by two black horses, in which sat General Coxey himself, beside Mrs. Coxey, a rather handsome young woman in a tan colored tailor made gown, shading with a parasol the white robed infant, "Legal Tender Coxey," aged two years.

Then, marching two by two, came the regular communes of the army. Before each commune was a commissary wagon, drawn by two Percherons, the wagon being daubed on its white canvas covers with wierd allegorical illustrations of "Curse of National Banks." Small flags fluttered from the hands of marshals, who galloped along side. The men bore their white peace flags, and symbolical banners, fearfully and wonderfully made, were sprinkled along at intervals.

Finally a long weird shriek of the bag pipes heralded the Philadelphia commune. From the city of Brotherly Love came also a goddess of peace. Her identity was hidden. She was another "unknown." A heavy brown wagon horse, selected for his docility, carried her. She was a good looking, plump, red cheeked maiden of eighteen, draped in the stars and stripes, with not inartistic effect, a gilt star flashing from her blue turban, and dark hair streaming down her back. Her escort was the leader of the Philadelphians, Christopher Columbus Jones, a small, dried up old man, who wore a long gray beard, a shabby jacket and a ruffled ancient beaver hat. Jones was perched high on the back of a cavorting coal black stallion, to which he clung desperately, with terror imaged in his face. Behind him was his secretary, Clinton, also on a black horse, a tall, slim man with another dilapidated high hat and American flag and a bearing which indicated that the destinies of the nation rested on his shoulders.

After him was dragged a disreputable looking white bull dog, wearing a maroon blanket labelled "Coxey." The sixty Philadelphians, dragging their cart, brought up the rear. Most of the men carried tin cups or canteens strapped over their shoulders. Along the roadside, through the woods, were groups of uniformed veterans from the soldiers' home, a mile distant. Handsome carriages lined the road and one of them contained Congressman Sibley, of Pennsylvania, himself a greenbacker like Coxey, with his family.

The first mile of the march lay up hill and down dale, along a pretty wooded road, from whose sides knots of curious country people, with a few arrivals from the city, watched the procession.

From Mt. Pleasant to the capitol grounds the men marched between rows of people, drawn to the scene by idle curiosity. About 400 wealers were in line. At intervals the crowd cheered the goddess of peace, Coxey and the buckskin garbed Marshal Browne. Scattered among the followers of the army were about a score of official representatives of labor organizations of various cities and as many more detectives from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Chicago and other cities. The men marched two abreast.

As they left camp some one cried out that the goddess of peace was unprotected from the sun and a bystander immediately secured a parasol for her. On the line of march a local sympathizer rushed out of the crowd to present a fan.

The increase of the crowd, as the army marched down Fourteenth street and into the business part of town, interfered to some extent with the progress of the army and the police were kept busy. General Coxey doffed his hat several times in response to cheers.

The first delegation to join the procession was the J. S. Coxey club, organized this morning. It consisted of 125 men, mostly bricklayers, who met the army at Boundary street, the old limits of the city.

At the Thomas Circle Marshal Browne ordered a slight halt for a rest, while the men gave three cheers for "Peace." The police dashed up and on their command the army promptly moved on. The commonweals turned into Pennsylvania avenue about 12:15 o'clock, and here a telegram was handed to Coxey from the populist convention at Harrisburg and read as follows:

"The populist convention, now in session here, send a greeting and express a hope that you will receive a fair hearing for the principles you have so nobly advocated."

Pennsylvania avenue, as the dusty procession moved into it, looked more like a circus was in town than anything else. There were a number of excursionists on the street, mostly country people in their best clothes. The peanut stands did a thriving business, and circus lemonade was in demand. The nurse girl, with a perambulator, and the toy baloon man were also features. The character of the crowd was wholly that of curious sight seers and showed no apprehension of any disorder or riot.

At the corner of Fourteenth street was a knot of men with commonweal army badges on. But they were not men who marched with Coxey. One of them accosted a passing policeman as a familiar acquaintance. Apparently both were bound to see the fun and one had enlisted as a special policeman and one in the army, as having about equal chances of being in good positions so hear and see.

There was little of actual interest in the walk up Pennsylvania avenue to the capitol grounds. Here the procession was deflected and moved up B street to the top of the hill, where a broad expanse of avenue sweeps toward the east front of the capitol.

This was Coxey's goal and there was every preparation to turn into the avenue, but as the opening was reached a solid front of mounted policemen was seen. They stretched from curb to curb, making ingress toward the capitol impossible. There was nothing to do but mow down the officers or go straight ahead. The squad of police ahead of Coxey's carriage went straight ahead. It was a ruse to carry the procession past the capitol. Coxey and his people showed their chagrin, but followed out B street.

Hurried signals were passed from Coxey to Browne. It was clear they would not be thus led willingly away. Half a block up B street Browne halted his column and dismounted. He turned over his horse to an attendant.

Then he went to Coxey's carriage and spoke to the general. Coxey turned to get out, but his wife tried to restrain him. He paused and kissed her. Then he sprang from his carriage and made his way back toward the entrance to the capitol. A howling mob was on his heels as the flank movement became evident. Browne followed, bearing his banner. The rank and file of the army stood in the street. The squad of police suddenly discovered that Coxey had turned back.

Quickly the officers spurred through the crowd after Coxey and Browne. The two had found B street impassable. Coxey sprang to the heavy stone paling, which surrounds the foliage of the east front of the capitol grounds, and with a bound was inside the fence and lost amidst the tangled shrubbery. Browne followed. The mob shouted at their disappearance.

The police were not to be daunted by this escape to the shrubbery. The first officer, mounted on a fine bay, reined his horse to the stone fence and then horse and rider cleared the fence and dashed into the shrubbery. The other mounted officers followed. Small trees, bushes and flower beds went down before the sweep of horsemen and the yelling crowd which followed.

Coxey and Browne dodged through the bushes to the open area at the east front. Here a blue coated mass awaited the oncomers. There was a crash as the fugitives, officers and mob from the street met the wall of officers and people in the open.

The onslaught was so sudden that the officers broke for a moment. People surged and shouted. Coxey and Browne were lost for the moment. The policemen stemmed the rush after a minute, during which one officer used his baton freely. In the intense excitement of the rush, Coxey had slipped unobserved through the struggling mass and before anyone knew it, he was bounding up the east front entrance to the capitol. He was up to the tenth step before he was recognized. Then the officers closed in above him and his further passage was barred.

The great crowd now recognized him and a shout went up from every corner of the vast assemblage. Coxey turned to the crowd and raised his hat. He was deathly pale. Captain Garden, of the capitol police, stepped to one side of him and Lieutenant Kelly, of the city police, was at his other arm. The officers formed solidly about him. The crowd below was kept back by menacing clubs.

"What do you want to do here?" asked Captain Garden.

"I wish to make an address" responded General Coxey, his voice showing intense excitement.

"But you cannot do that," said Captain Garden quietly, but firmly.

"Then, can I read a protest?" asked Coxey.

There was a moment's hesitation. He drew from his pocket a type written manuscript and began to unfold. There was a movement among the officers. Captain Garden quietly took Coxey by the left arm and Lieutenant Kelly took him by the right. They moved down the steps, the solid rank of officers following. Coxey was thus impelled downward and forward. He was not pulled or put under arrest, but firmly pushed away.

At the foot of the steps the great crowd greeted Coxey and the officers with a storm of shouts. Again the mounted officers charged, the crowd surged and for a time it looked as though there would be trouble.

But the little knot of officers pressed forward, with Coxey in their center. They were flanked by the mounted officers. Thus Coxey made his exit from the capitol entrance and to the front. As he moved away he tossed the typewritten protest to the group of newspaper men and said:

"That is for the press."

There was no attempt to arrest Coxey. The officers merely moved him away from the center of conflict. They were satisfied in having prevented the use of the capitol for Coxey's speech and its attendant demonstration.

When the open area had been cleared General Coxey was given unrestrained liberty. He turned toward his army, which still stood on B street.

Carl Browne was a shining mark for the policemen on account of conspicuous costume and from the fact that the most aggressive and tumultuous portion of the crowd followed him. As he broke through the foilage of the lawn half a dozen mounted police charged after him across the grounds, and escaping by a miracle from running down any of the people who scattered right and left before them. When Brown reached the foot of the capitol steps there was a hurried and exciting dialogue between him and the police which could not be heard through the uproar. Then two policemen threw themselves upon Browne, grabbed his flag of peace and smashed the staff, seized Browne by the shoulders and thrust him through the crowd, several hundred feet to the sidewalk.

Clubs were seen descending upon men's shoulders in the group, but whether Browne was hit could not be seen. As the two officers rushed him through the crowd he was seen trying to shelter his head as though he expected blows, and could be heard shouting:

"I am an American citizen; I stand on my constitutional rights."

Despite his constitutional rights the dramatic marshal was dragged to the police station. When the police had escorted Coxey to his carriage, pushing him by the shoulders, but not seizing him, he climbed into the vehicle, where his wife sat with "Legal Tender" in her lap, and as he stood there a loud cheer was sent up from the surrounding crowd.

Then the policemen seemed to lose their heads and falling upon the luckless colored men and women nearest them, they clubbed the negroes lustily. For a moment the army which, while all this was going on, had been waiting on B street, not knowing what to do, seemed leaderless and in confusion, although the men had not broken ranks in all this turmoil. The honor fell to the humble bass drummer of rescuing it from confusion, for he started a rhythmic and regular "boom" upon the instrument and the commonwealers fell into step and, with Coxey bowing to the right and left, amid wild cheers, the procession turned down Second street to the south and started towards the new camp in the Matrimoras region, by the James Creek canal, in the extreme southern part of the city.

The commonwealers reached the grounds in due time and immediately began preparing for camp life, which was to continue no one knows how long. Before the camp grounds were reached, however, Christopher Columbus Jones, of the Philadelphia contingent, was arrested. He and Browne will later be arraigned in police court.

Disorderly conduct and assaulting an officer, it was at first thought would be the charge, but later, at police headquarters, it was stated that the charge would probably be violation of the special act of congress against assemblages in the capitol grounds. The penalty under this act is a fine not to exceed $100, or imprisonment not to exceed sixty days, or both.

PROTECTING TRAINS.

United States Soldiers Shadow the Coxeyites.

The Chicago Contingent Starts on Its Journey, Headed Towards Fort Wayne.

New Haven, Conn., May 1.—George A. Sweetland's contingent of the Coxey army spent last night in Central Labor hall, having marched hither from Bristol. They were received by a local committee and a public meeting in the commonweal interest was held. All of Sweetland's army are married men and in the ranks most of the trades are represented. They will remain here until Wednesday, enlisting recruits. Sweetland is the man who last year started the agitation for reform on the Connecticut state prison and succeeded in obtaining a legislative investigation that cost the state several thousand dollars and resulted in the dismissal of Warden Chamberlain. Sweetland is a professional nurse and at one time was employed in the prison ward. He is thirty-two years old.

Chicago, May 1.—Randall's contingent of the commonweal army began its march today. There were ten companies, all organized in Chicago, and making altogether about 400 men. A brass band was expected but it did not report and the advance began without music. A large banner was carried in a wagon at the head of the column. The march was from headquarters, in a cooper shop on Rawson street, in the northern part of the city, and led through the business district. The first destination aimed at was Grand Crossing, near the head of Lake Michigan and close to the Indiana state line.

Mrs. Dr. Greer and two children, dressed in white, rode at the head of column in an open carriage. General Randall followed on his bay charger. A squad of police, under the command of Captain Cox, cleared the way and led the army through the streets.

Spokane, Wash., May 1.—When Dolphin's regiment of commonwealers passed from their barracks this morning they were surprised to see 200 United States soldiers. They had come in before sunrise from Fort Sherman, thirty miles distant. At 1:20 a. m. they received telegraphic orders from General Otis at Vancouver and at 5 o'clock they were in Spokane. They brought twenty days rations and have gone into camp in the outskirts of town. The plan is to have them here in a position to be dispatched either east or west to protect trains against seizure.

SALOONKEEPERS ARRESTED.

Mayor Brady Intends to Strictly Enforce the License Law.

Muncie, Ind., May 1.—Yesterday several Muncie saloonkeepers were arrested pending trial in the mayor's court Wednesday. Muncie has forty-eight saloons and twenty quart shops, or saloons that have license to sell by the quart only. The saloon men claim that they have been going to over $400 expense per year to live up to the law, while the quart shops next door to them have been permitted to enjoy the same privileges, contrary to law but without molestation. As a result several saloon men in the past year did not take out city retail licenses and continued to do business just the same. Mayor Brady made the discovery and ordered the arrest of George Brooks, William Pash, John Stadler and John Heaton. Some other arrests will likely be made.

MAY DAY.

Only One Slight Disturbance Reported.

In France and Italy the Demonstrations Are Characterized by Quiet and Orderly Meetings.

Ghent, Belgium, May 1.—Some slight May Day disturbances have taken place at Hamme, nineteen miles from this city. One thousand rope makers suddenly ceased work and joined in a disorderly procession, during which they broke a number of windows with stones. The local gendarms were called upon to restore order and succeeded in doing so after a number of arrests had been made.

Paris, May 1.—May Day is passing quietly throughout France and no disorder is anticipated anywhere.

Rome, May 1.—No May Day disorders are reported and it is hoped that the day will not be marked by any disturbance upon the part of the Italian workmen. Despatches received from the Island of Sicily announces that May Day is being celebrated there without any disorder.

AFRICAN AFFAIRS.

Chief Witbooi Makes Trouble for the Germans.

Capetown, May 1.—The government of Canada has upheld that it is impossible to postpone the colonial conference, called to meet at Ottawa, in September next, the government of Cape Colony has intimated that it will be unable to send a representative to the conference. The Germans have offered amnesty to the rebellious Damaraland chief, Witbooi. The latter, however has declined the offer with contempt. Witbooi has long been a source of trouble to the German colonists and the latter appear unable either to force or to bribe the chieftain into submission.

"JUST FOR FUN."

Biddeford, Maine, May 1.—All of the back boys employed in the shinning rooms of the Pepperill mills are on a strike. They say they are striking "just for fun." The mills have many orders on hand and if the boys remain out business will be seriously interfered with. A big strike in these mills a year ago began the same way and the mill owners fear trouble. The shinners, however, declare that they will remain at work.

BECOMES A JEW TO WIN A BRIDE.

Charles Barnum, of Saginaw, Gives Up the Christian Faith.

Grand Rapids, May 1.—Charles Barnum, of Saginaw, was inducted into the Jewish church yesterday. He was a Christian who loved Jennie Art, a Jewess, but she would not marry him until he had adopted her religion. He visited Rabbi Kromer, of the orthodox church in this city, yesterday, and the necessary rites and ceremonies were performed.

EIGHT-HOUR BILL.

Parliament Will Soon Renew the Discussion of It.

Washington, May 1.—Claude Meeker, consul at Bedford, Eng., has contributed an interesting chapter to the history of labor legislation in a report to the department of state upon experiments with the eight-hour bill of the English employes of labor. He says that though attempted legislation has been several times defeated the fight is to be renewed and the eight-hour bill will soon come up before parliament.

Death of an Artist.

Nyack, N. Y., May 1.—Julian O. Davidson, the well known artist, has died at his home in Nyack of heart disease and dropsy. Mr. Davidson's marine pictures ranked among the best in the country. In late years Mr. Davidson has also acquired some renown as an author, having contributed to Century and other well known periodicals.

Schriver Under Arrest.

Kansas City, Mo., May 1.—R. F. Schriver, wanted at Brooklyn, Iowa, for alleged fraudulent land transactions involving $6,000, is under arrest here. The authorities have been looking for Schriver for several weeks. He has been receiving mail here as "Littlefield & Co., Box 396."

Livery Stable Burned.

Salinas, Cal., May 1.—Fire broke out in a livery stable on Main street late last night and destroyed $25,000 worth of property. The capital hotel, the livery stable and five buildings were destroyed. There is suspicion of incendiarism.

Counterfeiters' Den.

Kansas City, Mo., May 1.—The United States authorities have discovered another counterfeiters' den in a room of well-known office building in this city. Moulds and spurious coin were found, but the gang had fled.

Found a Bomb.

London, May 1.—The Globe says that the city police are in possession of a bomb, which was found today in the Guild hall, or council hall of the city of London, to the north of Cheapside.

JURY CORRUPTION.

Juror Armstrong Sent to Prison for Eighteen Months

For Agreeing to Accept a Bribe to Hang the Jury in the Indianapolis Bank Wreckers Case.

Indianapolis, May 1.—Juror Alvin Armstrong, who offered to hang the jury in the bank wreckers' trial for $5,000 and who was arrested last week, was placed on trial before Judge Baker yesterday on a charge of contempt. Frank Coffin detailed the visit of Frank Stannard to him a few days ago and the offer of the latter to secure a juror who would hang the jury if he were paid. Stannard said to the witness that he, Coffin, was in a tight place and that he had a good chance to get a hung jury if not an acquittal. The witness informed his attorneys of the conversation and, acting on their advice, he told Stannard to bring the juryman to see him. Armstrong came with Stannard the next day, and when Coffin asked him if he would agree to do what Stannard pledged him to do he replied that he would, regardless of the evidence, for he had no conscience, but it was money he was after.

Attorney Claypool and others testified to the visits of Stannard and a stenographer's notes were introduced showing the conversation between Coffin and Armstrong in detail. Armstrong made no defense except to introduce three or four witnesses to prove his good character. The case was then submitted and the court sentenced Armstrong to the northern prison for eighteen months.

Judge Baker was evidently uncertain as to the measure of punishment to inflict, for both Armstrong and Stannard are under bond to appear before the grand jury to answer for conspiracy to corrupt the jury. He referred to the admonition he had given the jury when it was selected, and added: "Only a few hours afterward this man for $2,500 agreed to violate the oath that had been laid upon his conscience, agreed that he would defeat the ends of justice, agreed that he would bring his corrupt and polluted bargain into this temple of justice, and would prevent the fair and honest administration of the law. He should have reflected that if there is any one's presence, except the very presence of God, in which virtue and honesty and fidelity to one's obligation as a man are to be held sacred, it is where the solemn interest of the citizen is being adjudicated. While I feel thus with reference to the character of the crime on one hand, I cannot but feel a compassion for the juror's wife, family and friends; but however strong my feelings may be, they would be misplaced if allowed to interfere with such performances of my duty as would make the crime of the juror a thing that should be hereafter indulged."

KILLED ON THE TRACK.

Death of Three Men by a Railroad Accident.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 1.—A locomotive on the Pittsburg, McKeesport and Youghiogheny railroad ran into a party of fifteen young men, at Homestead about midnight, killing John Davis, and fatally injuring Michael O'Toole and Thomas Hallarn. The young men had been out drinking and were crossing the track when the engine backed into the party. All escaped but the three named.

Final Trial Trip.

New York, May 1.—The newly built United States cruiser Marblehead, Commander Charles O'Neil left her anchorage in the Hudson river today to go to sea for her final trip of forty-eight hours. She has already been tested for speed and provisionally accepted by the government, and the greater part of her contract price paid over. This trip is not expected to develope any defects and is pretty much a matter of form.

HEAVY TAX ON THE SALOONS

Liquor Dealers in Iowa City Will Have to Pay $1,000 Annually.

Iowa City, Iowa, May 1.—The city council at a special meeting yesterday passed an ordinance providing for the enforcement of the restrictions in the mulct liquor law and adding $400 to the state tax, making the total amount $1,000. The number of saloons will, it is anticipated, be reduced to about a dozen.

LIBERAL CONTRIBUTION.

Massachusetts Materially Aids the Irish Cause.

Worcester, Mass., May 1.—Rev. Dr. Thomas J. County, state treasurer of the Massachusetts Irish National federation, has sent a check for $5,000 to Dr. T. A. Emmitt, of New York, as Massachusett's first contribution to the Irish parliamentary fund in response to the appeal of Hon. Edward Blake.

Committed Suicide.

New York, May 1.—Harrison Price, aged fifty-two years, second cabin passenger, committed suicide by shooting, on board the steamer Saale soon after the vessel left Southampton for this port where she arrived today. Price was a native of the United States but had resided in England for the last ten years. He was booked as bound for Jersey City Height.

BEATEN IN HIS SUIT.

Indianapolis Judge Says He Can Be Refused a Ride in an Elevator.

Indianapolis, May 1.—Several days ago a colored man named Stuart got in the elevator at the Dennison hotel and the elevator boy refused to take him up to a room that he indicated. Stuart refused to leave the elevator and one of the clerks was called and he was ordered out. The clerk took hold of him and forced him out, and Stuart had the clerk arrested on a charge of assault and battery, expecting to make his conviction the basis of a suit for damages against the hotel. Today Judge Stubbs acquitted the clerk, holding that where an elevator and a stairway both lead to the same door in a hotel the proprietor may refuse to carry a person in the elevator, and that the evidence was not clear that the plaintiff had been assaulted.

HEARING EVIDENCE.

The Bidwell Criminal Libel Case on Trial.

The Prosecution Finishes Its Testimony and the Defendant is Placed on the Witness Stand.

The first witness placed upon the stand in the criminal libel case against W. P. Bidwell, the editor of the American Eagle, was Rt. Rev. Bishop Rademacher. He testified in brief to the title and location of St. Vincent's Orphan asylum; that he held the title as the successor of Bishop Dwenger; that the hospital was intended for the care of orphans and half orphans who were without support, of all ages from infancy to about fifteen years of age; that at about that age efforts were made to place them in homes; that orphans of protestant parents were taken as well as those of Catholics; that Sister Eudoxia had been in charge since the building of the asylum.

It was shown by Mr. Tills and Messrs. Eugene and Cass Smith that the defendant, Bidwell, was the publisher of the American Eagle and brought the article in question to the Newspaper Union to be printed; that when the edition of the paper was printed the libelous article was discovered and they suppressed all of the edition they could and substituted another article in its stead, and that the Newspaper Union thereafter refused to print any more papers for Bidwell.

The printed article alleged to be libelous was then introduced in evidence after a long and vigorous argument in opposition by counsel for the defense.

Sister Eudoxia then testified as to the character and arrangement of the asylum, and that the Rev. Father Theodore Borg had been the only priest in charge of the spiritual instruction of the orphans since the building of the asylum and that the present number of inmates was about 130.

With the closing of the testimony of Sister Eudoxia court adjourned and this morning Father Borg was placed on the stand. He testified as to his connection with the asylum ever since its establishment, that his duties were only those of chaplain; that he had no control over the management of the girls who were inmates of the institution, but that those duties were left entirely to Sister Eudoxia. With his testimony the prosecution finished its case and Smyley N. Chambers, the attorney for Mr. Bidwell, made the opening statement for the defense.

He said the defense would admit the publication of the article in the American Eagle but would deny that they had any intention of injuring Father Borg or any other inmates of the asylum and that the facts alleged were gathered from parties who were considered reliable and truthful.

The defendant, Mr. Bidwell, was then called to the witness stand. He said that he was the editor and proprietor of the American Eagle and that his paper did publish the article upon which this action is brought, but that at the time of the publication he did not know Father Borg and that he had no intention of reflecting upon his character or reputation. The article attributed the lewd actions referred to to a priest and there were, he supposed, a great many priests who visited the asylum.

He said the information upon which he based the article was obtained from Oran Goff, a telegraph operator, now residing at 19 West Jefferson, but then living on Wells street opposite to the St. Vincent Orphan asylum. Goff told him that a young lady inmate of the asylum had several times beckoned to him from one of the windows of the institution and that finally he had gone to her, when she told him about the dungeon story and the facts as given in detail in the American Eagle, which the witness detailed at some length.

"With what intention did you publish the article?" Mr. Chambers asked.

"To keep in line," was the reply, "with the general nature of articles that are expected to appear in such a paper."

"What kind of articles or news did you publish in your paper?"

"Those relating principally to patriotism or to sustaining the government; also articles opposing any class, sect or creed whatever which attempted to override the principles of good government."

Mr. Bidwell said that he was a member of the American Protective Association and that his paper advocated its principles and was published in its interest. It had ceased publication in this city. He was kept on the witness stand for some time and was rigidly cross-examined by Senator Bell for the prosecution.

On Hanna street yesterday a brother of Louis A. Heinrich was driving a fractious horse when the animal ran away and threw him out. His head was badly cut and Dr Duemling was compelled to take several stitches.

INTENSE BUT QUIET.

The End of a Most Remarkable Municipal Campaign.

Both Parties Working Hard and the Result Can Only be Conjectured —No Arrests Made.

Today ends one of the most remarkable municipal campaigns which has ever been conducted in Fort Wayne.

The attacks upon the respective candidates have been exceedingly bitter and personal in nature.

It is not to be wondered therefore that the stamp has been freely used and tonight when the ballots are counted it is quite likely many of them will be pretty well stamped over by the little red star.

Voting was begun early and kept up steadily. By noon over half the city's vote had been polled.

As to results it is difficult to tell. Both parties have been exceedingly vigilant, and while republicans claim 300 or 400 majority for Oakley the democrats are claiming the election of Shambaugh by a neat figure.

The election is exceedingly quiet and there is no excitement upon the streets. The beauties of the Australian system of voting become more and more apparent each year.

BECOMING IMPATIENT.

Democratic Senators Disgust With the Tariff Debate.

They Inaugurate a Movement Looking Towards a Speedy Settlement of the Question.

Washington, May 1.—That the rank and file of the democratic party in the senate are becoming impatient at the delay in the consideration of the tariff bill was shown yesterday by the circulation of a declaration in favor of closure of debate. The paper was prepared by Senator George and was quietly circulated during the afternoon, being handed only to the more influential senators. It was not signed by all to whom it was presented, some of the senators expressing the opinion that it was too early to attempt a closure and others declining on principle.

The paper recites that it has become apparent that the republican opponents of the tariff are determined to resort to filibustering to prevent the proper consideration and passage of the bill, and commits the signers to a simple declaration in favor of closure. It makes no specification as to how the changes shall be brought about, whether through the presiding officer or the committee on rules, leaving the point as well as that to whether it shall be a modified or an abrupt closure to be decided later.

It does not appear that the call will be pressed for the time being, but it is said to be handed around quietly as opportunity presents, so as to have the democratic side prepared for the change if undertaken, and also to have senators committed to it as far as possible. Senator Harris said that he is not prepared to announce any change of hours for the day sessions, but that he might have an announcement in that direction to make before many days.

SENATOR STOCKBRIDGE.

Chicago, May 1.—Senator Francis B. Stockbridge, of Michigan, died suddenly at the residence of his nephew, J. L. Houghtaling, last evening. The senator expired while seated in a chair in his sleeping room. Three weeks ago the senator and Mrs Stockbridge came to Chicago from their home at Kalamazoo, Mich., intending to go to the Pacific coast and visit the California fair. On the day set to leave for California he was suddenly attacked with stomach trouble. Last evening he died in intense pain from a combination of heart and stomach disorder.

Washington, May 1.—Many of the friends in this city of Senator Stockbridge ascribe his death to the Chicago cable cars. Last summer, while attending the world's fair, the senator was knocked down by a cable car and dragged some distance by the heavy vehicle over the rough paving stones. The apparent injuries were not serious but the nervous shock to a man of the senator's years and habits of life was very severe. Even after he was able to resume his senatorial duties he still suffered and complained of the effects of the shock, and it is believed that it must have directly weakened and interfered with the heart's action and thereby at least pricipitated the end, which came yesterday.

Colorado Crops.

Denver, May 1—The storm of last night and today was of incalculable value to the farmers, having come just in time to save crops and insure a bountiful harvest of wheat. If the remainder of the season should prove to be reasonably favorable, the crops will be in fine shape.

Have you voted? If not, do so.

May, the month of marriages, is here.

The old city council is no more. Its last meeting was held last night.

The battle of ballots is on in the city today. The polls opened at 6 o'clock this morning and will close at 6 o'clock this evening and every man should vote.

When the ballot box is closed tonight it will end one of the most hotly contested elections that has probably ever been held in this city. The parties struggling for supremacy have been active for weeks and no stone has been left unturned by either that could aid them in their contest. It has been a bitter, determined fight and one that will long be remembered.

When the next city council assembles it will be composed of only fifteen members, instead of twenty, as heretofore—five councilmen at large and one from each of the wards—and its duty will be simply legislative. The great burden of work heretofore performed by the council—determining what public improvements shall be made—will be looked after by the board of public works, the members of which are appointed by the mayor.

By the death of Frank Hatton, editor of the Washington Post, which occurred last evening at the national capital, American journalism loses one of the most progressive, able and honored members. He was born in Ohio, served as a soldier during the war, entered the newspaper business in Iowa and under President Arthur was the postmaster general of the United States. At the time of his death he was editor of the Washington Post. Both as a man and as a journalist, Mr. Hatton was a credit to the west—the section of his birth and his early struggles. He was distinctly of the new school of newspaper men—alert, progressive, independent. He founded at Washington the first newspaper of the really modern type that ever was published in that city.

With the burning of the old St. Charles hotel in New Orleans disappears a historic structure that was known over all the country. Probably no other hotel ever achieved equal fame. It was a part of the political history of the United States and it constituted the rallying point for the social life of the south. It sheltered most of the notables who have visited this country during the last forty years. It was historic as the real birthplace of the southern confederacy. It was a landmark in the business, the politics and the society annals of the southern states. Probably a new St. Charles will arise upon the ruins of the old. It will be larger, finer, more in keeping with the modern ideas of architecture. But it will never be what the old house was. It will be of the new regime. The original hotel typified the old order of things now gone forever.

The state board of health has determined to take active measures against further contagion from the smallpox districts of Chicago and the most stringent measures are to be adopted. It is claimed in state health circles that every case in the state has had its origin in contact with Chicago tramps or goods made in that city and that only the most stringent measures can prevent the introduction and spread of the disease in Indiana. It has been decided to prosecute rigid war against the cheap clothing made in Chicago under the "sweating" system. This must not be sent into Indiana and placed on sale unless it is disinfected according to the rules of the American Public Health association. The clothing must be accompanied by a certificate from the health officer. The board proposes to prosecute merchants who sell the clothing that is shipped into the state in violation of this rule. A large quantity of the material is disposed of in some towns in this state.

The mayor of Fort Wayne elected by the people today will not be the figurehead, as far as the possession of power is concerned, that he has been in times past. He will practically have the power of a czar in the city and will control its most important departments. He will name the three members of the board of public safety who will control the police and fire regulations of the city; he will name the three members of the board of public works who will say what public improvements will be made; he will name the board of health who will have charge of the city's sanitary condition. He not only appoints these boards but he also has the power of removal, and hence he can, to a great extent, shape and determine their policy and be responsible for their discharge of duty. Broad and extensive then will be the power of the mayor elected by the people today. He has great responsibilities resting upon his shoulders, and he should perform his duties with wise integrity and for the best interests of the whole people.

Editor Medill's Fancies.

Editor Joseph Medill of the Chicago Tribune has a [illegible] and winter villa at Los Angeles. He has the run of the town, managing his paper by telegraph and indulging his fads, of which he has a number, and he is right. No man is wholly happy without fads. One of Editor Medill's fads is the fountain of youth, which he disclosed to a newspaper correspondent lately. The fountain itself is in the San Bernardino mountains and is nothing less than a great reservoir of melted snow.

The snow water is the purest in the world, Mr. Medill insists, and he drinks it in great quantity, so that it will wash away the lime in his system. It is lime in the system that makes people get old and die, in the judgment of The Tribune's veteran editor. Mr. Medill himself is now 73 years old and has had time to get considerable lime into him. This choked him up, blood and bones, till it gave him rheumatic gout. He went to various springs in Europe and America to get cured, but all were no good. Then he studied into the science of rheumatism and gout and concluded drinking distilled water would wash out the lime that had gathered about his joints. That helped some, but it was reserved for the snow water of San Bernardino to complete the cure. It is not eating so much as drinking that fills the body up with lime, he contends. If, therefore, mankind will flush themselves, so to speak, with chemically pure water, they will clean themselves out and stave off old age. Mr. Medill claims that he is renewing his youth on snow water.

Say Good Words.

The teacher who educates your child toils on year after year doing her duty and often more than her duty. She may train them in the perfect way, making them grow to noble manhood and womanhood, but never a word of appreciation does she hear. Let her make a mistake, however; let something go wrong, and you denounce her in terms of the severest blame.

The newspaper writer gives his lifetime to writing things that will be helpful to his readers. It is his daily and nightly thought how he will interest them, instruct them and give them new courage when they are weary and disheartened. Never a word of praise do you give him. If he says anything you do not like, however, like lightning descend the bolts of your wrath. He hears from you then—he does indeed.

The office boy and the little errand girl—mere children, ignorant, blundering and timid—come into your employ when they ought to be playing outdoors. They do their poor best and grow pale and nervous, like overworked grown people, while yet they are children. You curse them for their mistakes and shortcomings; you threaten them with discharge; you talk to them cruelly. Do you ever praise them when they do well? Do you ever say one kind, appreciative word to those whose task it is to please you? Such a word would sweeten life to them for days. It would be like manna in the wilderness. It might inspire their whole future lives. Do you ever say it?

It is a cruel, heedless world.

Mysterious disappearances, with loss of personal consciousness during a considerable portion of time, are becoming quite too common. A man does not come home to dinner in the evening. His family worry. Next day when he does not appear they give the alarm and ask the police to look out for him. Weeks go on. No tidings of the missing man. He is mourned as dead. His wife puts on widow's weeds. Then, just before she has time to marry again, he suddenly turns up, his clothing in disorder, very dirty and with a wild and weird look on his face. He doesn't know a thing about where he has been; has no idea of the intervening time, so he says. He only knows he came back to himself in his own town. Then the newspapers take him up and show him to the public as a case of double consciousness. Scientific gentlemen read papers on him at their meetings, and he goes into magazines of occult psychology. It may be, indeed, that it is possible for people to have two states of mental consciousness, in one of which they are one person and in the other somebody else altogether, and the first individual does not know anything about what the second does. But we must be permitted to say that there seems to be a fad on double consciousness just now.

The City of Mexico is in advance of the cities of the United States in at least one important feature of sanitation. Hereafter its sewers will be regularly and thoroughly flushed. An abundant supply of water will be carried to the city from two lakes south of it and sent through its length and breadth. In a climate as warm as that of Mexico the effect of this cleanliness will be very great on the health of the people.

It would be unfortunate indeed if, after so many years of fame, money and hard work, Mark Twain should be seriously crippled in his private fortune by the failure of the publishing house of C. L. Webster & Co.

"Willie Wilde has more laziness to the square inch than any man of his size in Christendom," says Mrs. Frank Leslie, or words to that effect. "This time I married for love," says Mr. Willie Wilde.

High bred people keep their private affairs to themselves. Common people turn not only themselves but their neighbors inside out.

The Chosen Friends Celebrate Their Fifteenth Anniversary.

Lodges Mostly Given Up for Politics This Week—Ascension Day Services—Other Notes.

Columbia Council No. 3, Order of Chosen Friends, met last Friday night in regular session. After the short business meeting the doors were thrown open for a social and also for the fifteenth anniversary entertainment. Long before the exercises commenced their lodge room was filled with members and their friends to commemorate the anniversary. The exercises were inaugurated by the members singing the opening ode, and followed by an appropriate prayer by Rev. J. S. Ainslie. Next was a piano solo by Mrs. E. R. Austin, which was ably rendered, after which followed a recitation entitled "On the Brink," which was well given. H. P. Vordemark, grand assistant councilor of Indiana, then gave a brief history of the Chosen Friends, in which he stated that over $8,000,000 were paid to their beneficiaries and more than $[illegible] for disability—a grand showing for the past fifteen years. He was followed by a German recitation by Miss Wehnert, entitled "How Bad the Men Are." Rev. Ainslie then spoke. His remarks were practical and to the point. He said that it was an excellent opportunity for the people to become better acquainted with the order and to see for themselves that there is nothing dangerous to the public in the Order of Chosen Friends. That their proceedings, although secret, were exactly on the plane of "family secrets." No man has a right to know everything which transpires within the family circle, so it is with the Chosen Friends, which is nothing more than a family order. After more music and recitations the audience prepared for refreshments, which consisted of ice cream and cake in abundance. There being too much cake, it was agreed to sell the remainder (about twelve large ones) at auction, which created a great deal of amusement. The remainder of the program was as entertaining as the beginning. The others who took part were: Dr. G. B. Stemen, Miss Furlong, Mr. R. E. White, Miss Hanna Wehnert. The whole affair was a most enjoyable one and the guests were entertained in a very pleasing manner. The following committee were in charge: Dr. G. B. Stemen, Fred E. Wehnert, H. Piepenbrink, Mrs. L. Haus, H. P. Vordemark and R. E. White.

On Thursday of this week Fort Wayne Commandery, No. 4, Knights Templars, will fittingly observe one of the most beautiful of their rites—that of decorating the graves of deceased Sir Knights with flowers. This is always done on Ascension Day, which is always observed by Knights Templars all over the world. In the evening the commandery will march to Trinity Episcopal church, where Rev. A. W. Seabrease will deliver the Ascension Day sermon.

Kekionga council No. 177, of the Order of the World, has been reorganized in this city by G. I. Folsom, of Pittsburg. Both men and women are eligible. It meets Monday nights in the hall of the White building, corner of Calhoun and Wayne streets, and a rousing meeting was held last night. The order was worked up here some time ago, but owing to our state laws with regard to insurance, it had to be given up temporarily until the order could be adjusted to our laws.

Fort Wayne lodge No. 116, K. of P., did not celebrate its tenth anniversary last Tuesday evening as was first intended but has postponed the event until the evening of the twenty-second of May. This was done on account of the large amount of work on hand at the last meeting, which did not adjourn until long after midnight. Tonight the lodge will have work in the first degree.

Next Thursday evening will be one of importance to members of Summit City lodge, No. 36, A. O. U. W., as they will transact business of importance, as well as hear the report of a special committee appointed at the last meeting to select a suitable resort and rates for transportation.

The meeting of Summit City lodge, Degree of Honor, No. 2, A. O. U. W., this evening will be an important one and there should be a large attendance. The grand lodge delegates will be instructed. At the conclusion of the business an interesting program will be rendered.

Tonight the Order of Foresters will be instituted in Harmony hall by David Millar, of Toronto. There will be about thirty charter members.

Last Friday evening Summit City lodge, No. 170, F. and A. M., had two candidates for the first degree and one for the second.

There will be a meeting of Home lodge, No. 342, F. & A. M., this evening.

BRIDE QUICKLY DESERTED.

Riley Funk Leaves the Owner of a Big Cattle Ranch.

EMPORIA, Kan., May 1.—Cottonwood Falls and Strong City are wrought up over the sudden departure of a bridegroom of a few weeks' standing. Riley Funk and Mrs. Ada McHenry were married about four weeks ago near Emporia and went at once to the bride's home, one of the largest cattle ranches in Chase county. On Wednesday last Funk left his wealthy bride and her home, leaving a note behind stating that he would never come back and accusing his bride of unfaithfulness. Mrs. Funk heard her husband was in Emporia Saturday and came here yesterday. She says she is at a loss to understand the reason of the sudden desertion. She is one of the most wealthy citizens of Chase county, and stands high in the estimation of all who know her. She is a thorough business woman of muscular build, while her husband is a small man, who, previous to his marriage, was renting one of her farms.

IS HE GUILTY?

Emmet Seymour to Answer to the Killing of G. P. Fifield.

Emmet Seymour, at the expiration of a three year sentence in the Iowa penitentiary, was arrested last week by Sheriff Babcock of Jones county on an indictment for murder in the first degree. The case is one of the most noted of any in the criminal annals of Iowa. On the evening of Sept. 3, 1888, the body of George P. Fifield was found on the railroad track that leads to the state quarry. He had had a letter from his son and had started to his daughter's, Mrs. A. J. Judson, a short distance away, to read it to her, and when on his way home he was killed, the right side of his skull having been crushed with a club. He was 65 years old and had not an enemy in the world, and no one could find any cause for the murder. Emmet Seymour was also a son-in-law of Mr. Fifield's, having married his youngest daughter. On the evening of Dec. 8, 1890, Mr. Harper, manager of the Anamosa Lumber company, discovered some one loading lumber in the back part of the yard. The man stealing the lumber jumped on his sled and drove rapidly away. Harper got a lantern and traced the team, and finally found that Emmet Seymour was the man who was taking the lumber. A search warrant was got out, the premises searched and the lumber found, but Seymour had gone.

EMMET SEYMOUR.

In January, 1891, Sheriff Hogan learned that Seymour was in Idaho, and twice he made the journey there—1,000 miles—without finding his man, costing the county about $500. On June 16, 1891, the sheriff located Seymour working in a livery barn in Omaha, and immediately started for him, but on his arrival he found that he had left Omaha the day before, and that he was now going under the name of J. H. Brown. The sheriff learned that he had gone to Kansas City selling medicines, but he was too late, for he had left the latter place for St. Louis.

It was learned at St. Louis that Seymour was working on a farm at Red Bud, near St. Louis. The city marshal of Red Bud was instructed to look for Seymour, and soon found the farmer he was working for. They came to town, and at the muzzle of a revolver Seymour was arrested and soon returned to Anamosa, where he was tried and sentenced to three years in the penitentiary on the charge of grand larceny.

It is on account of these events that he is now suspected of having killed his father-in-law. The supposition is that his father-in-law knew of and admonished him in regard to his stealing, and threatened to tell on him, and to prevent an expose some believe he killed the old man. But the idea is prevalent that the evidence is purely circumstantial.

Seymour is a young man, about 27 years of age, and he married a young lady, a graduate of the high school. He had resided in Anamosa about four years and was a sober, industrious and apparently an upright young man. His wife has since secured a divorce. During his term in prison he has never been punished. It is believed by a large number of citizens that he will be acquitted. The trial will come off in May. He is a man of iron will, and when handcuffed showed no signs of nervousness or being affected in any way.

CHURCH STOOD BETWEEN.

Emma Shanley of Buffalo Goes to an Insane Asylum.

Miss Emma Shanley of Buffalo, N. Y., was taken to the Buffalo State hospital the other day raving mad. The events which led to this condition began about two years ago, when Miss Shanley met William Knox, a young business man. After a time they became engaged. Miss Shanley was a Catholic; Mr. Knox a Presbyterian. When the young people came to arrange matters for their marriage each wanted the other to consent to a marriage in a different faith. Mr. Shanley decided the matter by declaring that Mr. Knox must marry his daughter in the Catholic faith or not at all, and when Knox refused to assent to this proposition Shanley forbade him to come to the house. Knox and the girl met secretly and kept up their engagement. About two weeks ago they waited on Mr. Shanley together and begged his consent to a civil marriage. Mr. Shanley refused. Next day Knox proposed an elopement, but it was a week before the girl would consent. During this time Knox avoided her, did not answer her notes and ignored her purposely so as to alter her determination if possible. Finally she sent word to him that she would meet him on a certain day and they would be married and then return and ask the pardon of her parents. Her father detected something unusual in the girl's conduct and put a watch on her, with the result that the elopement was interrupted. Miss Shanley went to bed next day and has been failing rapidly since. She refused to take nourishment and soon showed signs of mental failure. Last week it was found that she had completely lost her reason. She did not recognize Knox when he called at the asylum to see her. Her chances of recovery are small. Mr. Shanley is heart broken. His daughter is taken with violent spasms whenever he visits her.

GONE INTO THE MIST.

THEIR NAMES WERE ONCE ON EVERY TONGUE.

NOW THEY ARE SELDOM MENTIONED AT ALL.

Ferdinand Ward, John C. Eno and Henry S. Ives Enjoying the Seclusion Afforded by the Confines of Oblivion.

THE RECENT MARriage of Ferdinand Ward, the ex-Napoleon of Wall street, reminds us of the fickleness of fame. Only a few years ago Ward's name was on every tongue. To-day he has been almost forgotten. And there will not be much love lost, for in fame, his name was after all only a synonym of everything weak and false in the financial world. The burglar who stealthily climbs through his sleeping victim's window is a sort of a saint when compared with Ward as a Wall street operator. True the burglar may take a life or two, but what is one life or two lives compared with the deaths and broken hearts which Ward left in his trail? His crimes sent Gen. Grant to an early grave and put a blot on the name most revered by Americans. Countless widows and orphans, who had intrusted their earnings with Ward, became public charges as a result of his villainy and to-day his victims are growing up in the slums. Perhaps it is well that the name of Ferdinand Ward should be forever forgotten.

FERDINAND WARD.

Mention of his name, however, brings to mind another name that was familiar to newspaper readers some years ago, because the man for whom it stood had made himself notorious by his financial irregularities—that of John C. Eno. It was ten years ago that he was discovered to be a defaulter to such an extent that it was feared that the credit of the Second National bank of New York had been impaired beyond rejuvenation. Eno's father stepped to the front, however, and by the payment of more than $2,000,000 saved the bank from collapse. The defaulting son escaped to Canada, where he engaged, with great success, in business enterprises of one kind and another, and remained there till a little more than a year ago, when he returned and gave himself up, being immediately released on heavy bail. Since then he has lived for the most of the time at the Fifth Avenue hotel, which his father owns. He is practically the same man as when he became an exile. His face shows no traces of regret for his misdoings and his manner is just what it was in the old days. He is not yet quite out of his troubles, but there is, after all, little chance that he will ever be tried now, partly because of the lapse of time since his fall from the high place he once occupied in New York's financial world, partly because of the ability of the lawyers who have been retained in his interests, and more than all, perhaps, because no one, excepting his father, suffered loss of a penny. Eno dresses well and his business investments in Canada yield him a handsome income. Not all of his old friends have deserted him, but it is not likely, no matter what his future business successes may be, that he will ever again attain a place in society.

JOHN C. ENO.

Next on the list of men whose names were often before the public, first because of brilliant successes in business and then because of sudden and awful falling from a high estate, is Henry S. Ives, another Napoleon of Finance. How he scintillated and coruscated and glowed in the fierce light of publicity during the time that he was believed to possess the magic touchstone that would bring vast wealth to him and to those who followed in his footsteps! And how ingeniously and gallantly he fought to retain his place! Accounts of his manipulations of Chicago, Hamilton and Dayton filled the financial columns at one time and later stories of his life in Ludlow Street jail were staple matter for all the newspapers. After his release from the jail because of a mistrial, caused by two jurors who could not bring themselves to declare him guilty, he gave bail and the case was dismissed.

Unlike some others who have burned their fingers in Wall street's flame, he returned to the scene of his former triumphs and operated in stocks in a small way. Then, for there were some who still believed in his financial ability, he was employed to finance a big dry goods concern in Brooklyn, whose proprietors desired to transform it into one of the great industrial corporations of these later days. Ives showed by his work there that the confidence felt in his ability was not misplaced, for he succeeded very well in the task he had undertaken. His commissions were considerable, aggregating perhaps $100,000, and with this sum he decided to re-embark in his old time occupation of manipulating railroad stocks. Then he married and when it seemed that he might possibly regain his old form his health gave way and he was missed from his usual haunts. It was soon learned that he had betaken himself to a more congenial clime, and that he was seeking to regain his lost health in Florida. It is feared that he is suffering from consumption.

Farmers Fight to Death.

C. W. Inman and M. A. Warner, two prosperous farmers residing five miles east of Hartley, Iowa, got into an altercation the other night over a disputed roadway, when Warner stabbed Inman in the breast with a pocket knife. As soon as the deed was committed Warner went for medical aid for his victim and at the same time offered himself up to the sheriff of O'Brien county. Inman died before the doctor reached him. Warner says that Inman left his supper table in a passion and went to his door, stating that he was going to kill him, and in self-defense he used the knife. Both were influential men and the affair has created quite a sensation.

Attacks on Washing-Powders

don't affect Pearline. Pearline is a washing-compound, in powder form, to be sure, but quite a different thing. It's made so that it acts upon dirt as nothing else will, but can't possibly do any harm to substance, hands or fabric.

Soap-makers are advertising against washing-powders, claiming that they ruin the clothes. They're more than half right. But chemical analysis and the experience of millions of women prove that Pearline hasn't the power to harm clothes that soap has. And it saves all that ruinous rubbing that you have to use with soap, besides.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, if your grocer sends you an imitation, be honest—send it back. 326 JAMES PYLE, New York.

PICTURESQUE WORLD'S FAIR, the latest and grandest of World's Fair reproductions, is the ONLY series that appears in natural colors, each of its 256 pictures being reproductions of Water Colored Photographs,

By famous artists, and each one being worthy of a frame. It is also the only work which is indorsed by Director General Geo. R. Davis, and the labor and expense of its production are so great successful imitation is out of the question. All the resources of art and the aid of all modern improvements in printing, in portraiture and in engraving, have been summoned, and the work is what might have been expected from expenditure on such a grand scale. It is so remarkable that the Director General gave promptly to "Picturesque World's Fair" his enthusiastic indorsement and approval. Who better than he should know when at last the Columbian exposition has been rightly pictured, who better than the man who was at the head, whose enterprise and energy afforded so much of the grand impetus of the undertaking, whose whole heart was in the enterprise and who knows its every feature as a father does his child?

How to Obtain the Series. In every issue of "The Sentinel," there will appear a numbered coupon. Cut this coupon out and preserve it until six of different dates have been accumulated, then bring or forward them, together with TWENTY CENTS, to the Fine Art Department of "The Sentinel" and there will be delivered to your address the part called for of the series of sixteen parts of this magnificent collection of sixteen colored views each, which make up

DIRECTORS MEET.

The Grand Rapids Re-elects the Old Officials.

The Shops Are Closed and the Men Voting—The Commercial Travelers' Meeting.

The postponed meeting of the directors of the Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad was held yesterday at Grand Rapids. It was decided not to elect a president to succeed W. O. Hughart, resigned. The old officers were re-elected throughout with W. R. Shelby as first vice president and J. H. Hughart second vice president and general manager.

A COMING RAILROAD ELECTION.

Attorney A. A. Purman is circulating a petition among the business men and the citizens generally asking the county commissioners to call a special election in Wayne township for the purpose of voting aid to the Fort Wayne and Eastern Railway company. The amount asked by the company is $150,000, and in return for this snug sum they agree to locate the main shops of the road in this city. Several years ago Wayne township voted $200,000 to this road for the purpose mentioned above, but the company failed to fulfill its part of the contract and the appropriation was forfeited. The petition is being signed by almost everybody.

MINOR MENTION.

The Train Dispatchers' Association of America will hold its annual convention in Chicago on June 12.

The Chicago, Burlington and Quincy has opened for traffic its new bridge over the Mississippi river at Alton, Ill.

William Studer resigned his position at the factory of Rhinesmith & Simonson last evening, to take a position at Huntington, his old home.

The Lake Erie and Western earned in the third week of April $50,253, a decrease as compared with the corresponding week in 1893 of $12,476.

The Ohio Falls car works last week shipped in one train twenty carloads of lumber sawed at their own mill to the Pullman car works. There was 170,000 feet of lumber in the shipment.

Mrs. Adam Forepaugh, jr., wife of the great showman, came in from the west at 7 o'clock over the Wabash last evening and left on No. 8, over the Pittsburg, for New York city.

W. H. Brown's fine sorrel team attempted to run away at the Pittsburg freight house this morning. One of the freight house employes caught the animals before any damage resulted.

The humane management of the Vandalia is arranging as far as possible to give the veteran engineers the easiest trains to run and, as far as possible, daylight trains on the Indianapolis division.

The management of the Pennsylvania Railroad company has authorized the building of fifteen locomotives and 250 freight cars at the shops in Altoona. At the Juniata shops twenty locomotives are to be built.

Chairman Blanchard says that at the meeting this week he will have encouraging news to report relating to rate matters. The roads in the association, he says, have strictly maintained rates since the agreement was mutually entered into.

On Thursday or Friday of this week will be decided the matter of re-establishing the Chicago and Ohio-river pool. On Thursday the passenger officials will meet in Chicago to arrange details, and on Friday the general managers will either approve or reject the work.

The Standard Wheel works will this week finish the task of finishing the rough spokes on hand and will then close the department for the summer. No wheels will be built until next fall. This is unfortunate, as a number of wheelmakers will be out of employment.

The Wabash road will have a finely equipped passenger train, made up of new cars, out of this city on the morning of the 19th inst. to carry the Fort Wayne delegation to Lafayette, where the state meeting of the commercial travelers takes place. A fine dining car will also be in the train.

Today a reduction of 33 per cent. in the wages of employes on the Wheeling and Lake Erie road, from the highest officials to the humblest employe, goes into effect. This is the direct result of the great coal strike. The officials say they had but two alternatives—to discharge men or make a cut in salaries. When the strike is over the old scale of wages will be restored.

Every factory and shop in the city was closed until noon today and a few of them remained closed all day. There never was an election which more deeply interested the shopmen than the present contest, and in all parts of the city the men were gathered in small groups and earnestly discussing the situation and working in the interest of their respective favorites. The shopmen are voting a mixed ticket—that is, for the men who they like best, irrespective of party.

M. B. Smalley, proprietor of the Marble Cycle works, of Plymouth, Ind., was here yesterday and engaged the services of seven machinists to work in his bicycle factory. The men have been promised steady employment all summer. The Marble Cycle works are, Mr. Smalley said, over-crowded with orders for wheels.

Charles F. Porter, rate clerk in the Wabash freight office, went to Peru this morning to participate in the municipal election.

C. F. Silser, trainmaster, and W. S. Dance, bridge superintendent, of the Wabash, spent last night in this city. Both reside in Peru.

A number of promotions took place on the Pan-Handle today. N. C. Deane has been appointed trainmaster of the A and B divisions, with headquarters in Pittsburg. Mr. Deane has just commenced his twenty-fifth year of service with the Pennsylvania company. H. F. Bickel has been appointed assistant trainmaster, with headquarters at Pittsburg. Mr. Bickel was an operator for eighteen years in the train dispatcher's office. John W. Ansel has been appointed assistant trainmaster, his headquarters to be Dennison. George Brown will be chief train dispatcher, with headquarters at Birmingham.

SYMPATHETIC STRIKE.

Centralia Miners Go Out, But Not Because of a Grievance.

They Are Influenced by Dissatisfied Miners Elsewhere—The Situation in Other Districts.

Centralia, Ill., May 1.—The 400 or more miners employed in the two mines here will come out and join in the great strike. The wages paid here are fifty-six and one-fourth cents and the mines contract to supply the Illinois Central railway. One of these mines takes out about 400 tons for this purpose daily and the contract does not expire until June 1st. Every effort, both on the part of the citizens here and the mine owners, has been exercised to continue the work in the mines, but in vain. The Centralia miners admit that they are satisfied with the work and pay, but the influence brought to bear upon them by the state federation resulted in bringing the men out on the sympathy plea. An attempt was made to create a strike in Sandoval, six miles north of here, but the men voted against the move three to one. The Sandoval mine employs its miners by the day.

CORBETT ANSWERS DAVIES.

Alleges a Secret Understanding About the Fight With Jackson.

London, May 1.—The Sportsman publishes an interview with Corbett in regard to his fight with Jackson and the statements recently made by Parson Davies. Corbett said:

"Davies is simply on a big game of bluff. After the fight at Jacksonville, Davies, Brady and myself had a quiet talk, and it was understood that the fight with Jackson would not occur until the autumn. I would not have come to England to map out a big program if I had to fight a man in June, and if Jackson believes all that Davies says, why is he not in training instead of play-acting? Davies is simply bragging for advertisement. If Davies will make it worth my while to forfeit my engagements by making a small bet I will cut short my tour and fight Jackson when and where he likes."

MANY LIVES LOST.

The Calamities Resulting From the Earthquakes in Europe.

Athens, May 1.—A sharp shock of earthquake was felt here at 2:20 a. m. today. Several lighter shocks followed, but no further damage was done. Reports from the stricken districts confirm the more alarming reports as to the loss of life and amount of damage. It is believed that when the total loss of life from earthquake disasters and from the subsequent exposure of the homeless people are added up, it will be found that nearly if not quite 600 people have lost their lives through the recent calamities.

WANTS IT DECLARED VOID.

The Keokuk Street Railway Goes for $10,000.

Keokuk, Iowa, May 1.—W. J. Roberts has applied to the superior court to not confirm the sale of the electric street railway made Saturday under a foreclosure mortgage securing bonds for $85,000 held by the Central Trust company. Roberts claims the bid of the purchaser, $10,000, is grossly inadequate; that not all of the bondholders were notified of the sale; that the purchase price is insufficient to pay even the preferred claims prior to the mortgage bonds. Roberts is a creditor and his interest is not secured by the sale.

A NOVEL CASE.

Fine Guernsey Cattle Killed By Order of Court.

New York, May 1.—Ex-Vice President Levi P. Morton has filed with the court of claims, at Albany, a claim for $5,200 for nineteen of the finest Guernsey cattle in the country, which were killed by the state board of health under the tuberculosis law. It is at the discretion of the court to make awards for cattle so killed. The claim of Mr. Morton is the first to be filed and the owners of fancy herds, who have suffered losses are watching with interest what will be done with it. If it is allowed then claims aggregating $75,000 will be filed.

Shot Dead.

Belfast, May 1.—A farmer named Gardiner was shot dead while seated at a window of the kitchen of his farm house at Ballyhavistock, county Antrim. The murder is believed to be of Agrarian origin. One of Gardiner's neighbors has been arrested on suspicion.

Mine Sold.

Colorado Springs, Col., May 1.—The Victor mine, at Cripple Creek, is reported to have been sold to New York and London capitalists for $520,000. This is the largest sale thus far in the history of the camp.

Loss by Fire.

Vicksburg, Miss., May 1.—The town of Bolton, thirty miles distant, has suffered a serious loss by fire of incendiary origin. The loss is about $50,000.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

King Alexander Will Go Abroad.

Belgrade, May 1.—It is reported that King Alexander will shortly go abroad for several months and his father, ex-King Milan, will act as regent.

OUR WIT AND HUMOR.

SAYINGS AND DOINGS BY THE FUN MAKERS.

Breakfast in a Texas Hotel—He Didn't Wink—An Anatomical Problem—Some Good Hits by Our Humorous Exchanges.

"WELL, WHAT KIND of a breakfast did you have?" inquired a slightly shabby looking individual, taking a seat in front of a Texas hotel and addressing a commercial traveler.

"Worst lay out I ever struck on my whole route. Horrible spread to dish up to a hungry man."

"The steaks would have half-soled a pair of kip boots?"

"You bet. Why, the coffee was so transparent I could see samples of the cook's hair curled up in the bottom of the cup."

"And you could not tell the difference between the butter and the sweet oil?"

"No; and the bread was the worst case of sour mash I ever saw in my life."

"And the baked potatoes were warmed through and as solid as a door-nick?"

"Yes, and they tried to palm off three different dishes of yesterday's soup for a new species of hash."

"And the roast looked like a piece of charcoal?"

"Bet your life! and the batter cakes were nothing less than raw dough."

"And the waiters were saucy and indifferent?"

"Yes, one of them picked up a chair and offered to hit me with it if I called for any more tea. I'd like to see the landlord of this ranch. I'd just like to see him as a curiosity. He must be the orneryist cuss in fourteen states."

"Well, I've been thinking some of rejuvenating this establishment for quite a while, and being the landlord, I'm taking a quiet stroll in and out among the guests getting their views. I always like to strike a live kicker like yourself, because then I get in all the important testimony for the prosecution, and know just where to begin with my reconstruction. Just stop here on your way back and you will find different arrangements."—Texas Siftings.

Rather Toplieavy.

Boy—That toy boat you sold me is no good.

Dealer—What's wrong with it?

Boy—It won't stand up. Flops right over quick as I put it in the water. Guess you thought I wanted it for a man-of-war.

A Financial Discussion.

Johnnie Fewcents—Can you lend me twenty dollars for a few days?

Weary Friend—Why don't you pawn your watch?

"Because it is a keepsake from my dear mother, and I don't like to part with it."

"My money is a keepsake from my dear father, and I don't like to part with it, either."

Tyndall's Father.

Prof. Tyndall's father was a shoemaker in an Irish village and lived in rooms in the rear of his small shop. But he had more than a share of learning and was witty and sarcastic in argument. His son was sent to the local grammar school, and one of his old chums there says that young Tyndall was an effeminate boy, who gave little promise of living to be 73 years of age.

The usual treatment of catarrh is very unsatisfactory, as thousands can testify. Proper local treatment is positively necessary to success, but many, if not most, of the remedies in general use afford but temporary relief. A cure certainly cannot be expected from snuffs, powders, douches and washes. Ely's Cream Balm, which is so highly commended, is a remedy which combines the important requisites of quick action, specific curative power, with perfect safety and pleasantness to the patient. The druggists all sell it.

SYRUP of FIGS

Syrup of Figs is for sale in 50c and $1 bottles by all leading druggists. Any reliable druggist who may not have it on hand will procure it promptly for any one who wishes to try it. Do not accept any substitute.

St. Louis has a feminine "elevator boy." A New Whistle for Locomotives.

The bell chime steam whistle consists in producing three distinct tones, pitched for illustration to the first, third and fifth of the common musical scale, thus giving an agreeable musical chord. It is more penetrating than the common whistle, and can be heard farther.

THEOLOGICAL SEMINARIES.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 1.—The committee appointed by the Presbyterian general assembly of 1892 to "take into consideration the whole subject of the assembly to theological seminaries" is in session at the Hollenden hotel in this city. The committee consists of sixteen members. The session today was devoted to the discussion of a plan by which the seminaries and assembly might be brought into closer harmony than at present exists. There are ten of the seminaries besides Union, which is to some extent in disfavor with the assembly since the appointment of Dr. Briggs as a member of the faculty was disapproved a year ago.

Artificial Glaciers.

Teachers who have found it difficult to make the movements of glaciers clear to their pupils may find it helpful to use one of these simple methods, which are given by a German writer. For ice, he substitutes yellow pitch, the surface layers of which, after exposure to the air, show about the same degree of plasticity and brittleness that ice has. Take a square tray which has a slanting gutter; this gutter must first be lined with a layer of very hot pitch, to prevent the mass from rolling down. Then pour in the rest of the pitch. As it moves downward, cracks are made from the edges toward the center at an angle of 45 degrees to the edges, and join transverse fissures, which are produced in the middle. Where the tray widens, longitudinal crevices are produced.

The other method differs from this only in coating the surface of the pitch with a layer of white paint, so that the cracks appear black on white, and are more easily seen. The writer says that particular forms of cracks can always be observed at the same parts of the tray, and that the motion, which has the same kinds of variation noticed in glaciers, can be studied with the microscope.

WE OPEN THE SEASON

Today with the greatest stroke of merchandising ever attempted by a Fort Wayne Clothing House—an event that will add a new Epoch to the history of our firm, and that will totally eclipse any and all sales we have ever run. This is a broad statement, but is literally true as a personal investigation will speedily convince you. We have already given the public of this city and vicinity a series of big values in TROUSERS and we now come forward with a veritable "broadside" of bargains in MEN'S, BOYS' AND CHILDRENS SUITS.

MEN'S ALL WOOL SACK AND FROCK SUITS

These suits come in FINE CLAY WORSTEDS, Blue and Black Cheviots, light colored cassimeres and cheviots, unfinished worsteds and dark cassimeres. The sack suits come in straight fronts or cutaway style and are cut extra long and stylish in every particular. Every one of these suits were made for this season's trade. Every pattern we show you is new, and the trimmings and workmanship is all that you could desire. These suits are actually worth $12, $13, $14 and $15, and you would consider them cheap at that. So confident are we of their strong value that we court a comparison with what other dealers will show you at from $5 to $10 higher in price.

BOY'S NEW SPRING SUITS

The greatest values you ever saw at $2.88, $3.88, $4.83, $5.88, $6.88, $7.88.

The city council held its last meeting last evening, with Mayor Scherer in the chair. The council rejected all the bids for constructing the corrugated iron roof over the market place, the lowest of which was $6,000, the price being declared too high. Mayor Scherer made a speech on retiring and thanked the members for the confidence in giving him the presiding officer's chair and for their conduct toward him in the council chamber. After the mayor several other members of the council arose and made parting addresses. There was no other business transacted.

Last evening Officer Smith's attention was called to five young men who were stealing a ride in a Wabash freight car. The car was loaded with merchandise and the boys were suspected of having broken into the car with the intention of stealing. This, however, proved not to be the case as nothing was missing. The boys turned out to be wandering musicians. One had a guitar, one a mandolin, one a triangle, and the other two sang. The boys were locked up at the station house, but bars and keys could not keep in the music which they made, and they were all good players and singers. This morning they were let go, and before leaving the station house favored the officers with some fine selections.

The Conductor Knocked Down and Badly Injured—All Arrested and Jailed Here.

Three tramps seized a car in a Pittsburg train at Monroeville at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon and when the conductor attempted to dislodge the men they knocked that gentleman down, injuring him severely. The tramps were armed with new revolvers, which they flourished in the faces of the train crew, and threatened to shoot if they were molested. A telegram was sent to this city and Detective Howley, of the Pittsburg road, went out to the east yards to meet the train. He boarded the car and boldly commanded the tramps to surrender, which they did. The "Lily" was summoned and the tramps were taken to the police station and locked up. They claimed to be members of Coxey's army.

RIOT AT CLEVELAND.

Seven Thousand Unemployed Men Knock out a Street Car.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 1.— Seven thousand unemployed men paraded the streets today, after listening to speeches in Monumental square. In the line were many unruly spirits. When on the central viaduct a motorman refused to stop his train while the procession passed and the mob attacked and wrecked a car. Later nearly ten shots were fired over another car, which was compelled to stop. Several persons were knocked down during the march and others were injured by missiles thrown by the mob. On Pearl street another riotous scene occurred. A street car was totally wrecked by the mob and the motorman assaulted and fatally injured. A policeman who was on board drew his revolver but before it could be used the mob closed in on him and he received very rough handling. Pistols were fired in every direction. Many plate glass windows were smashed and a panic ensued in the crowded thoroughfare. There were many narrow escapes, but fortunately no one was killed outright. The police, who early in the day were massed in the various stations, have been called out.

SOCIETY VERY QUIET.

Many People Attend the Club Convention.

Pleasant Surprise Party Given at the Home of Mr. and Mrs. Shreve—Short Personal Items.

About fifty members of clubs of this city left last evening and this morning for Indianapolis to attend the convention of the Indiana Union of literary clubs, which opened this afternoon and continues tomorrow and Thursday. The Indianapolis News has the following today in regard to the federation:

"There is every indication that the meeting of the Indiana Union of Literary clubs, which opens tomorrow, will be largely attended. The programs prepared are attractive, offering a variety of entertainment to the delegates. The federation has already served a good purpose in showing the extent to which the people of Indiana have interested themselves in those things of good report which are represented in books, pictures and music. But for the federation it would not have been possible to estimate the strength of these movements.

"These organizations, existing in so many of the towns and cities of the state, are, in a way, the result of evolution, an evolution which produced the Indianian from the Hoosier. False impressions as to the condition of a people are not easily corrected, but we believe that in recent years there has been a favorable reaction from old prejudices as to the uncouthness of the Indianians. Indiana has gone forward in enlightenment with something more than the natural pace of progress. We have been able to contribute shining names to national history and to literature.

The value of the organizations brought together in the federation does not lie in their own immediate individual work, but in their service toward raising the general level. In most instances they have been educational in character, clubs for study in which the social element has had an important part. They have placed within the reach of many who have been denied the advantages of systematic schooling the joys of literature."

SHOT AT A BOY.

The Lad Ran From the Officer for No Apparent Reason and Was Soon Stopped.

Last night about midnight Officer McGuire was going by an alley in the rear of Gross & Fellens' drug store when his attention was attracted by the figure of a young man standing in the rear of the store. The officer hailed and calling out to the young man asked him what he was doing there. At this the fellow took to his heels and ran down the alley at a break-neck speed. Officer McGuire made close chase and ran the fleeing "suspect" to Jefferson and thence onto Harrison street. Here he again called out to the young man to "halt," and as he did not do so, raised his revolver and fired. This brought the fugitive to a standstill and it was found that the lad was none other than Eddie Driftmeyer, a clerk for Louis Schmitz, the druggist. The boy had done nothing that he should have run and Officer McGuire let him go.

The Result. Our Duty.

The next issue of the "Daily Sentinel" will tell the result of the election today, and while the campaign has developed much bitterness it is well for everybody, without regard to party, to forget past differences and join hands and hearts in giving the new mayor all the moral support possible, that Fort Wayne may shine as a star in the diadem of American cities. Do not be a prophet of evil, and predict all kinds of disaster if your candidate is not elected, because they will not happen. So you may just as well adapt yourself to the new order of things. The car of progress will speed onward in Fort Wayne whether you do or not. Look about you and if your heart does not swell with pride at our growth and prosperity, it is only necessary to add that the cheapest place to buy wall paper is at I o hull's, 90 Calhoun street.

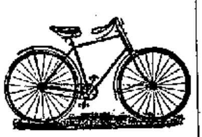
IT RUNS EASY!



THAT is what they all say when they first mount a TRIBUNE. There is reason for this, and they are right. Using good material will not alone make a good bicycle, there must also be fine and accurate workmanship: the bearings must be perfect, the chain must fit the sprockets, and all friction must be avoided. It takes time and costs money to build bicycles in this way, but they give the rider satisfaction. TRIBUNES are built for the Rider and not for jobbing houses. Insist on having a TRIBUNE; there is not so much profit in it for the dealer, but there is more value in it for you.
